INTRODUCTION

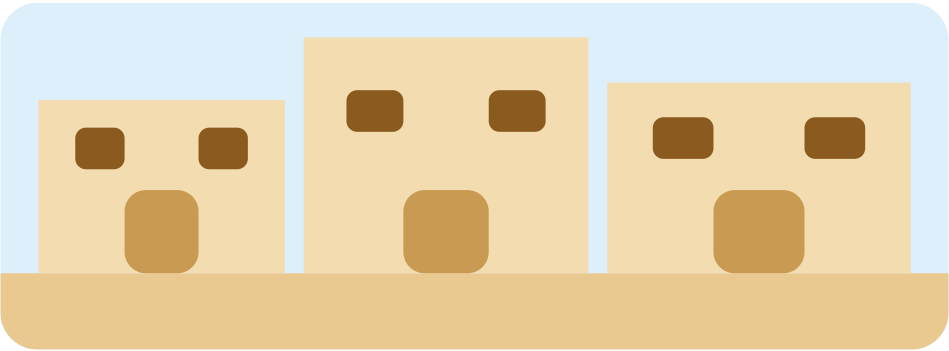

Welcome to Zollino

Zollino (in Griko Τσουλλίνου, Tsuḍḍinu) is a small town in the province of Lecce, in the heart of Salento, and part of the Grecìa Salentina, the Greek-speaking linguistic island where Griko is still spoken.

Here the prehistory of menhirs and dolmens meets courtyard houses, pozzelle (ancient water wells) and the ancient bread known as scèblasti; here, in June, the Fiera di San Giovanni brings music, exhibitions and local produce to the square.

Tradition, innovation and new opportunities: a village that safeguards its identity and looks to the future, also through the career guidance services of the Tradizioni Digitali ("Digital Traditions") project.

Inside: history and legend · megaliths · churches and old town · Griko · festivals · products · scèblasti · Orientation Desk

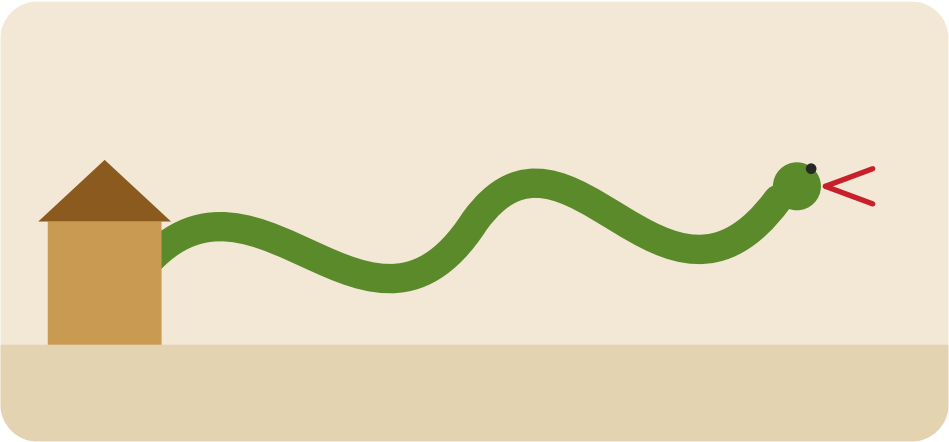

HISTORY

Between legend and fiefs

The area has been inhabited since prehistoric times, as the dolmens and menhirs still preserved show.

According to a legend, Zollino was founded by the inhabitants of the ancient hamlet of Apigliano, who fled an invasion of vipers.

Over time the village passed through several noble families and was a fief of the Granafei marquises of Sternatia, until the abolition of feudalism in 1806. The Greek rite was practised in the village until the 16th century.

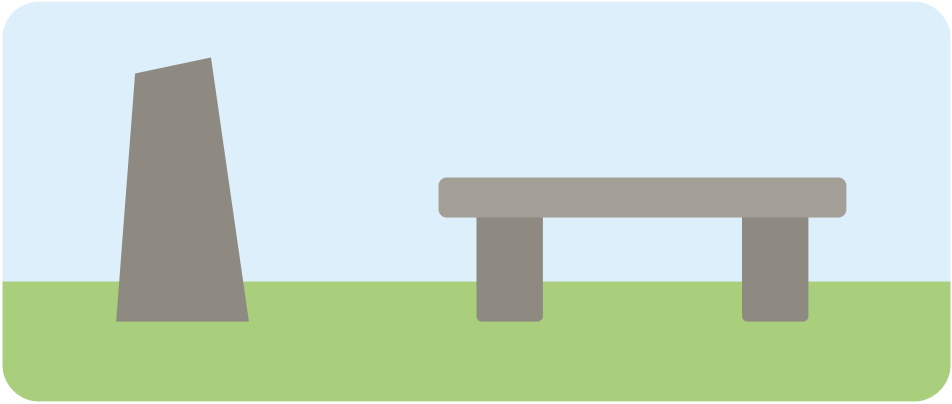

MEGALITHS

Menhirs and dolmens

Menhir della Stazione. At over 4 metres high, it is the symbol of Zollino par excellence. It stands about 400 metres from the railway station, at a crossroads of ancient roads towards Zollino, Sternatia, Soleto and Corigliano d'Otranto.

Menhir di S. Anna. About 3 metres high and carved with crosses, it stands in a courtyard on the edge of the village, near the church from which it takes its name. According to legend it was raised over the tomb of a powerful tribal chief.

Dolmen Cranzari. In the Pozzelle area, east of the built-up area: four monolithic pillars support a rectangular slab.

ARCHITECTURE

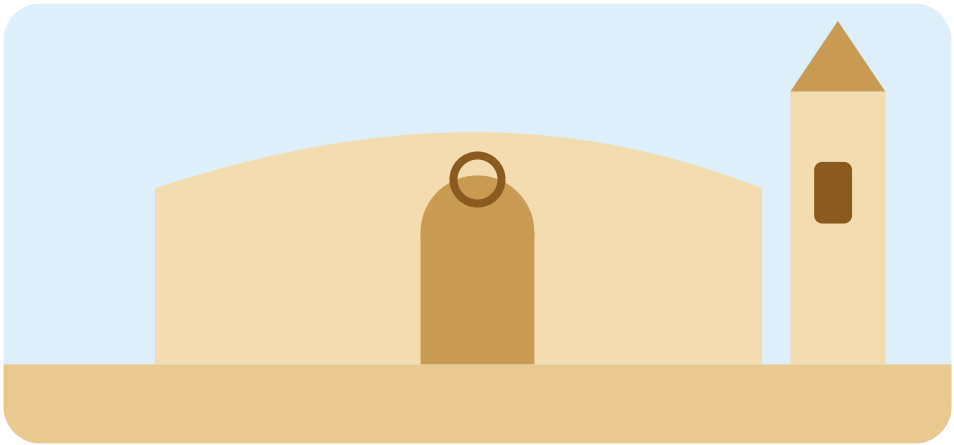

Churches and places of worship

Mother Church of Saints Peter and Paul, in the heart of the old town: at the entrance the stone coat of arms of Zollino, and beside it the bell tower of 1893.

Church of S. Anna, rebuilt and completed in 1677 (design attributed to Francesco Manuali): the façade has four niches with statues of saints and decorated portals, the interior is in Lecce Baroque. It gives its name to the nearby menhir.

Church of S. Giuseppe and church of the Madonna di Loreto.

In Largo S. Pietro stands a votive column dedicated to Saint Peter.

ARCHITECTURE

Courtyards, wells and olive mills

The old town grows along ancient axes with rich courtyard houses (case a corte), such as those in via dei Pozzi and between via Viecolina and piazza S. Pietro.

The pozzelle, ancient wells for collecting water, are another distinctive feature of the village, which also has a Largo Pozzelle.

The underground olive mill of the 17th century tells the story of olive oil. Nothing remains of the castle: its foundations are marked in piazza Vecchio Castello.

INTANGIBLE HERITAGE

Griko, the language of the Grecìa

Entering Zollino you are fascinated by the sounds of the local speech: together with the other villages of the Grecìa Salentina, Griko, an ancient dialect of Greek origin, is still spoken.

The language lives on in folk songs, in place names and in the names of dishes. Since the 1990s the municipalities of the Grecìa have joined forces to preserve and promote language, culture and traditions.

Folk music is part of this heritage: the Notte della Taranta was born in the municipalities of the Grecìa Salentina.

TRADITIONS

A calendar of festivals

Fiera di San Giovanni. Since 1910, in June, among the alleys and courtyard houses of the old town: concerts, meetings, exhibitions, documentaries, theatre and the area's finest products.

Festa de lu Focu. Every 28 December, in largo Lumardu, a great bonfire lights up the winter night like an "artificial sun", with music and food stands. It was born in the late 1970s from an idea of Giovanni Pellegrino, to preserve "the roots and the wings".

Sagra della Scèblasti. Born in 1996 from a group of volunteers, it takes place in August in the old town: food and wine stands, a crafts market and live music evenings.

PRODUCTS

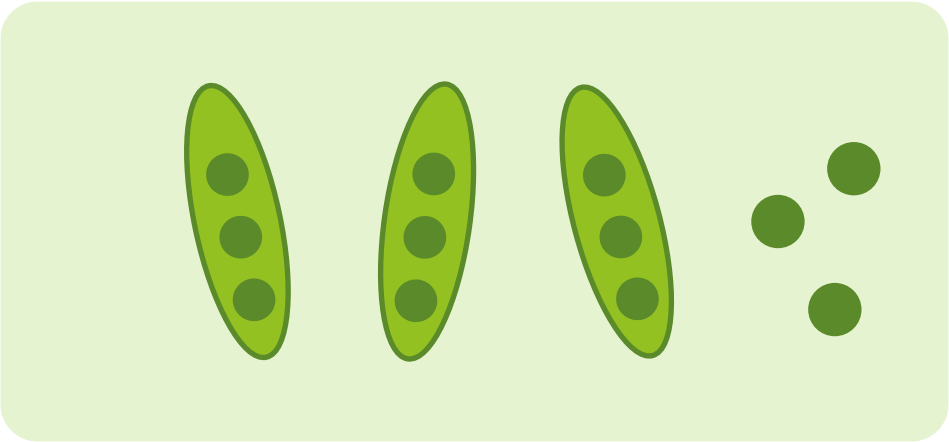

Three traditional products

The Fiera di San Giovanni showcases three products recognised as traditional agri-food products in the ministerial list:

The Zollino broad bean (fava di Zollino).

The dwarf pea (pisello nano).

The scèblasti, an ancient leavened bread of the village, also included in Slow Food's Ark of Taste.

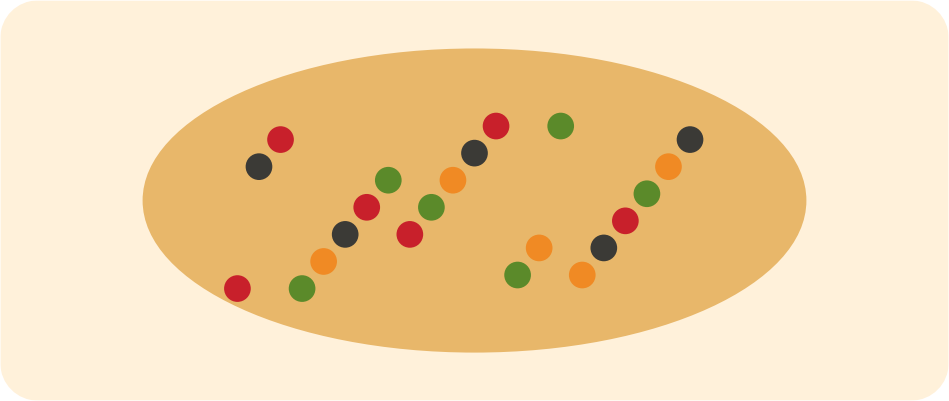

GASTRONOMY

The scèblasti

The scèblasti are a seasoned bread of very ancient origin, typical of Zollino: the soft dough is topped with courgettes, tomatoes, pumpkin, olives, capers, onion and oil. The name comes from Griko and means “without shape”.

They are baked in ancient wood-fired ovens, dug into the calcarenitic marl bed called piromakho (“that fights the fire”), and are traditionally eaten on All Saints’ Day, on the Immaculate Conception (8 December) and on 24 June, the feast of Saint John the Baptist.

Today some trattorias and osterias in the Grecìa Salentina serve them as an aperitif or starter. They risk being forgotten, however: production is mostly domestic and only two ovens in the village still make them.

TRADIZIONI DIGITALI

THE PROJECT

Tradizioni Digitali and Punti Cardinali

Tradizioni Digitali (“Digital Traditions”) is the project through which the Municipality of Zollino tells the story of its area, its excellences and its training and job pathways.

It is part of the public call Punti Cardinali for work: career guidance centres for training and work (PR Puglia FESR-FSE+ 2021–2027, Priority 5 “Employment”, Action 5.1), co-funded by the European Union.

The Municipality is supported by Antform and a network of local organisations.
